How to use these templates

Client Finder Agent already writes a first email, a DM and a call opener for every lead that scores high enough, and the Follow-up Autopilot drafts your follow-ups. So why templates?

Use them when:

- a draft needs a rewrite, or its AI Status column says "Template used" (the backup pitch starts "I was looking at how [Short name] shows up online, and one thing stood out:" and quotes the top evidence);
- a lead is Pitch ready (no public email), so you call or send a DM (direct message);
- the owner gives you an email address on the phone;
- you contacted someone by DM or phone, because the Autopilot only follows up emails;
- someone replies. The workflow never answers replies for you.

Copy a template, replace every bracket, read it once out loud, and send it yourself. Nothing here is sent automatically, and nothing should be sent in bulk.

Subject Your website on phones

Hi Sunrise Family Dental team,

I ran your website through Google's PageSpeed test on mobile and it scored 23 out of 100. On a phone, the main content takes about 9.8 seconds to appear, and the footer still says © 2019.

When a page is that slow, many people searching for a dentist simply tap the next result on Google Maps.

I help Austin practices with website design and redesign. Would it be useful if I sent you a free 2-minute video showing exactly what I would fix?

Thanks,
Asha Rao
Pixel & Pine Studio
pixelpine.studio

P.S. If this isn't useful, just reply "no thanks" and I won't email again.

Example data: the first email the workflow drafted for the example business Sunrise Family Dental.

The placeholders

Placeholder	What to put there	Where to find it
[Business]	The full business name	Business column
[Short name]	The name without "LLC", "Ltd" or "Pvt Ltd"	"Sunrise Family Dental", not "Sunrise Family Dental, PLLC"
[Business type] and [City]	What you searched for, and where	Search column, for example "dentists in Austin, TX"
[Evidence]	One true fact about their problem, in plain words	Evidence column (numbered, top problem first). Each niche below shows how to rewrite it.
[Evidence, short]	The same fact in 5-10 words, for DMs, calls and voicemails	For example "your website is very slow on phones"
[Your offer]	Your free first step, written to them ("your website", not "their website"). The default offers already do this.	yourOffer in ⚙️ Settings
[Your service]	What you sell	yourService in ⚙️ Settings
[Your name], [Your business], [Your phone]	You	Your signature
[Their name]	The name they sign with when they reply	Their reply. If there is none, write "Hi [Short name] team".
[Day and time]	Real times when you are free	Your calendar

> Important: Check the evidence yourself before you send anything: open the website, look at the Google listing, or run the test again. The checks are careful and skip what they can't verify (the Notes column often says why), but they can still be wrong. If you can't see the problem, don't mention it. One wrong fact makes the whole message look like spam.

The ending of every email

The first emails the workflow drafts already end with your signOff (`Thanks,` unless you change it in ⚙️ Settings), your signature and the opt-out line. When you write an email by hand, end it the same way:

Thanks,
[Your name]
[Your business]
[Your website and phone]
[Your postal address]

P.S. If this isn't useful, just reply "no thanks" and I won't email again.

Below, this ending is shown as [Signature]. Follow-ups end a little differently: Autopilot follow-up drafts already end with your signature and the followUpOptOutLine from the Autopilot's ⚙️ Settings: "If you'd rather I didn't follow up, just reply and I'll stop." You don't need to add one. In the follow-up templates below, [Signature] means your signature plus that line, instead of the P.S. If you empty followUpOptOutLine, write your own opt-out sentence into each follow-up.

In the US, the CAN-SPAM law expects a postal address and a clear way to opt out in every commercial email. yourAddress is optional in ⚙️ Settings, but the results page reminds you while it is empty.

Five rules that keep these templates working

1. One problem per message. Use the top one. The rest can wait for the call.
2. No links or attachments in the first message. Spam filters and people distrust them. Links are fine once someone replies.
3. One yes/no question at the end.
4. Be kind about the problem. Say "this is slowing you down", not "this is terrible".
5. No made-up numbers or results. Only quote the sheet or a test you ran yourself.

Calls, voicemails and DMs

- Call in business hours, but not at their busiest time. Ask for the owner or manager.
- If they give you 30 seconds, say the problem and your offer in one sentence each. Then stop and listen. If they are interested, ask for the best email address and send your offer the same day.
- Leave one voicemail, not five. Speak slowly and say your number twice.
- Send DMs one at a time, by hand, with no links or voice notes. Use WhatsApp only with a number the business shows for customer messages.
- Follow up a call or DM once at most, by hand.

> Warning: Calls and messages have their own rules in many countries, for example the TPS and CTPS do-not-call lists in the UK, US rules on auto-dialers and marketing texts, and the DND (Do Not Disturb) register in India. OUTREACH-PLAYBOOK.pdf explains them. Stop as soon as someone asks you to.

Follow-ups

The Autopilot drafts follow-up #1 in the same Gmail thread 3 or more days after your first email, and follow-up #2 7 or more days after that. Then it stops. Each draft already ends with your signature and the follow-up opt-out line. It never drafts a follow-up once someone has replied or the email bounced. Use the templates to edit its drafts, or to follow up by hand after a DM or call. Each follow-up #1 adds one new angle; each follow-up #2 makes it easy to say no.

Subject: [Short name]'s website

Hi [Short name] team,

I was looking at [Business type] in [City] on Google Maps and checked your website.
[Evidence]

Many people look at the website before they call. When it looks slow, broken or out of date, some of them call the next business on the list instead.

I'm a web designer, and I could send you [Your offer]. No call needed.

Would that be useful?

- `Your homepage on a phone` (for speed and phone problems)
- `A question about your website`
- `Idea for [Short name]'s website`

Evidence in plain words

Top Problem	Write [Evidence] like this
Slow on mobile	In Google's PageSpeed test for phones (a simulated phone on a 4G connection), your homepage scored [Score] out of 100, and the main content took about [Seconds] seconds to appear.

Top Problem	Write [Evidence] like this
Not mobile-friendly	On a phone it shows as a tiny desktop page, so people have to pinch and zoom to read it.
Not secure (no HTTPS)	Your website loads without HTTPS, so Chrome shows "Not secure" next to your web address.
Outdated website	The footer of your homepage still shows © [Year], which suggests the site hasn't been updated for a while.
Weak SEO basics	The homepage has no [page title / description / main heading], which Google uses to understand the page.
Website down	The website on your Google listing didn't load when I tried it twice: [the reason from the Evidence column, for example "the domain doesn't seem to work any more"].
Broken website link	The website link on your Google listing ([the exact link from the Evidence column]) leads to a "page not found" error.
Security certificate error	Browsers show a "Your connection is not private" warning instead of your website.
Placeholder website	The website on your Google listing only shows a "coming soon" page.
No website	Your Google listing has no website, so people who find you on Maps can't see your services or book. If the listing links to a Facebook, booking or delivery page instead: Your Google listing links to your [Facebook page / booking page], not to a website of your own.

Example: Example data. For Sunrise Family Dental in Austin, TX, the Evidence column starts: "In Google's PageSpeed mobile test (a simulated phone on a 4G connection) the homepage scored 23/100 and the main content took 9.8 s to appear. Chrome's data from real visitors also rates the site slow." In your email, write: "In Google's speed test for phones, your homepage scored 23 out of 100, and the main content took almost 10 seconds to appear."

Tip: Leads with no website, a site that is down, a certificate error or a placeholder page usually have no email in the sheet, because emails come only from a homepage that loads. Call or DM them. A site that is down or has a certificate error may be fixed by the time you call, so open it yourself first.

DM for Instagram, WhatsApp or Facebook

Hi [Short name] team, I'm [Your name], a web designer. I noticed [Evidence, short]. Can I send you [Your offer]?

For a business with no website, use: "I noticed your Google listing has no website, so people who find you on Maps can't see your services."

Phone call opener

Hi, this is [Your name], a web designer. I noticed [Evidence, short], and I have a quick idea to fix it. Is the owner or manager around for 30 seconds?

Voicemail (about 20 seconds)

Hi, this is [Your name] from [Your business]. I'm a web designer, and I noticed [Evidence, short]. I have a free idea for you. Call me on [Your phone]. That's [Your phone]. Thanks.

Follow-up #1

Hi [Short name] team,

Here's a quick way to see what I meant: open your website on your phone using mobile data, not Wi-Fi, and look at it the way a new customer would. If anything feels slow or hard to read, that's what I would fix first. Would you still like [Your offer]?

[Signature]

This test fits speed and phone problems. For other problems, change the test: "look at the year at the bottom of your homepage" (Outdated website) or "look at the left of the address bar in Chrome" (Not secure).

Follow-up #2

Hi [Short name] team,

I don't want to fill your inbox, so this is my last note. If the website becomes a priority later, just reply and I'll send [Your offer]. And if it's not for you, a quick "no thanks" is completely fine.

Evidence in plain words

Top Problem	Write [Evidence] like this
Weak SEO basics	Your homepage has no page title, which Google often uses as your headline in search results. Or: Google's free Lighthouse check (a website test) scores your homepage [Score] out of 100 for search basics.
Slow on mobile	In Google's PageSpeed test for phones (a simulated phone), your homepage scored [Score] out of 100.
No schema markup	Your homepage is missing "structured data", a small piece of hidden code that tells Google your hours, address and services.
Few Google reviews	You have [Number] Google reviews, while the typical [Business type] in the same search has about [Median].

Top Problem	Write [Evidence] like this
Not mobile-friendly, Not secure (no HTTPS), Outdated website	Use the lines from the Web design table.
No website	Your Google listing has no website, so Google has less to show about you. Call or DM these leads.

> Example: Example data. For Elm Street Dental in Austin, TX, the Evidence column says: "Google's Lighthouse SEO check scores the homepage 62/100 and the homepage has no page title, no meta description, no main heading (H1)." In your email, write: "Your homepage has no page title, no short description and no main heading. Google's free Lighthouse check scores it 62 out of 100 for search basics."

Google reviews & reputation

For leads from the Google Reviews & Reputation workflow. Its checks use only Google data: the rating and review count, compared with the other businesses in the same search. The default offer is "a free one-page plan to get more reviews from customers you already have".

> Warning: Google's review rules forbid fake reviews, paying or rewarding people for reviews, and asking only happy customers. Never offer any of these. Never promise a specific rating, a number of reviews, or to remove bad reviews. Read Google's current policy before you sell a review service.

> Tip: This workflow's default yourService is "getting more 5-star Google reviews from happy customers". Claude reads it, the backup template pitch uses it word for word, and it can sound like a promise of 5 stars, or like asking only happy customers. We suggest you change it in ⚙️ Settings to something like `getting more Google reviews from the customers you already have`.

First email

Subject: Your Google reviews

Hi [Short name] team,

I was comparing [Business type] in [City] on Google Maps. [Evidence]

Many people compare stars and review counts side by side before they choose who to call. A steady flow of fresh reviews can change that comparison.

I help local businesses get more reviews, in a simple way that follows Google's rules. I could send you [Your offer].

Would that be helpful?

[Signature]

Other subject lines

- `[Short name] on Google Maps`
- `Reviews next to nearby [Business type]`
- `More reviews from existing customers`

Evidence in plain words

Top Problem	Write [Evidence] like this
Low Google rating	You're rated [Rating] stars on Google from [Number] reviews, while similar businesses nearby average [Average] stars.
Few Google reviews	You have [Number] Google reviews. The typical [Business type] in the same search has about [Median], and the top three average about [Top 3].
No website	Your Google listing has no website. Call or DM these leads.

Example: Example data. For Hillcrest Family Dentistry in Austin, TX, the Evidence column shows a rating of 3.6 stars from 48 reviews, and an average of 4.6 stars for similar businesses nearby. In your email, write: "You're rated 3.6 stars on Google from 48 reviews, while similar dentists nearby average 4.6 stars."

Tip: Be gentle with a low rating, and never quote their bad reviews in a first message. "Similar businesses nearby" means the other businesses in the same Google Maps search.

Here's one idea from the plan, free: ask every customer for a review at the end of the visit, with a short link or a QR code (a square code people scan with their phone) at the front desk. Google's rules expect you to ask everyone, not only the happy ones. Would you like the rest of the plan?

No social media links	Your homepage doesn't link to an Instagram, Facebook or TikTok account.
No analytics or ad pixel	I couldn't find a Google Analytics tag or a Meta Pixel in your homepage's code. These are small pieces of code that count your visitors and let you show ads to them later.
Few Google reviews, Outdated website	Use the lines from the Local SEO and Web design tables.
No website	Your Google listing has no website. Call or DM these leads.

Example: Example data. For Bright Smile Studio in Austin, TX, the Evidence column starts: "Their homepage (bright-smile.test) doesn't link to an Instagram, Facebook or TikTok account." In your email, write: "Your homepage doesn't link to an Instagram, Facebook or TikTok account." (The .test address is made up.)

AI chatbots & booking

For leads from the AI Chatbots & Booking workflow. The default offer is "a free 5-minute demo of an AI assistant trained on your own website". Never say the assistant replaces staff, and don't promise that no enquiry will ever be missed. Say it helps answer enquiries when nobody is free.

Subject: After-hours enquiries at [Short name]

I was looking at [Business type] in [City] and visited your website. [Evidence]

Would you like to see it?

[Signature]

Other subject lines

- `Booking online at [Short name]`
- `Questions that arrive after closing`
- `Enquiries while your team is busy`

Evidence in plain words

Top Problem	Write [Evidence] like this
No online booking	I couldn't find an online booking button or booking widget on your homepage.
No chat or WhatsApp	I didn't see a live chat, chatbot or WhatsApp button on your homepage.
Limited opening hours	According to your Google listing, you close before 6pm on [Number] weekdays. Or: According to your Google listing, you're closed all weekend. Use the one the Evidence column shows, or both.
No website	Your Google listing has no website. Call or DM these leads.

Tip: The checks read only the homepage's code, so a booking button or chat that sits on another page can be missed. Open the site and look for a "Book" button or a chat bubble yourself before you send.

Example: Example data. For Westlake Dental Studio in Austin, TX, the Evidence column starts: "We couldn't find an online booking button or booking widget on their homepage (westlake-dental.test)." Two more problems follow. Use the first one only: "I couldn't find an online booking button on your homepage."

Hi [Short name] team,

Here's a quick test you can try tonight: visit your website after closing time and try to book or ask a question, the way a new customer would. If that's slow or impossible, that's the gap an assistant fills. Would you like me to build [Your offer] so you can try it yourself?

Replies

Answer every reply within one working day. Keep it short and human. Links are fine now, because they wrote to you. Then update the Status in your sheet as shown. The Autopilot marks a lead Replied when it sees a reply in your pitch's Gmail thread (even from another address, such as a colleague or the owner's personal email; Notes then says who replied) or an email from the lead's address. Out-of-office auto-replies don't count. It never follows up a Replied lead again. If your email bounced, it sets Bounced instead: try a call or DM.

Hi [Their name],

Thank you. I'll send [Your offer] by [Day].

After you've seen it, a 15-minute call is the easiest way to talk through the fixes. Would [Day and time] or [Day and time], your time, work for you?

[Signature]

Status: Replied, then Meeting booked when they accept a time.

They ask the price

Hi [Their name],

Good question. [Your service] for a business like yours usually costs between [Low price] and [High price] with me. The price depends mostly on [the main thing that changes it, for example the number of pages].

I'd rather give you an exact price than a guess. Would a 15-minute call this week be OK? If you prefer email, reply with [the two details you need] and I'll send a fixed price.

[Signature]

Status: Replied. Use your real prices, and never quote a price you won't honour.

"Send me more info"

Hi [Their name],

Of course. Here's [Your offer]: [Link]

In short: I'm [Your name], and I help [Business type] in [City or region] with [Your service]. [One real example of your work, with a link. Delete this line if you don't have one yet.]

For [Short name], I would start with [Fix 1], [Fix 2] and [Fix 3].

If it looks useful, would a 15-minute call make sense?

[Signature]

Status: Replied. Never invent clients, results or reviews to fill the example line.

"Not right now"

Hi [Their name],

No problem at all, thanks for letting me know. Would it be OK if I checked in around [Month]? If not, I won't contact you again.

[Signature]

Status: Replied. If they say yes, write `Check in: [Month Year]` in Notes and set a calendar reminder. If they say no, set Lost.

"How did you get my email?"

Hi [Their name],

Fair question. I found [Business] on Google Maps when I searched for [Business type] in [City]. Your email address is published on your website's homepage. I use a tool that checks public Google listings and websites, and I check each result myself before I write.

I wrote because [Evidence, short]. I'm [Your name] from [Your business], based in [Your city or country].

If you'd rather not hear from me, just say so and I won't email again.

[Signature]

Status: depends on their answer. The Website, Google Maps and Search columns show where each lead came from.

"Remove me"

Hi [Their name],

Done. I've marked you as "do not contact", and you won't hear from me again.

[Your name]

Do these the same day, before anything else:

1. Set Status to Do not contact.
2. In Gmail, open Drafts and delete any follow-up waiting for them.
3. Keep the row: its Place ID stops future searches from adding the business again, and its final status means no workflow emails that address again, and Client Finder never pitches that address or website again, even under another listing. If they also ask you to delete their details, clear everything except the Place ID, the Email and the Do not contact status. Keeping just their address on a do-not-contact list is how you make sure you never email them again (regulators such as the UK ICO accept this kind of suppression record).

"We already have someone"

Hi [Their name],

Thanks for letting me know, that's good to hear. I'll leave it there and won't follow up.

If you ever want a second opinion on [the topic, for example your website], you have my email.

[Signature]

Status: Not interested, with `Has a provider` in Notes.

Video audit script (2 minutes)

When someone says "yes, send it", record and send the video within 24-48 hours, in one take. Any screen recorder works.

Time	Show	Say
0:00-0:15	Their homepage or Google listing	"Hi [Their name], I'm [Your name]. You said yes to a short video, so here it is. It takes two minutes."

Time	Show	Say
0:15-0:50	The problem, live	"This is your [website / Google listing] as a new customer sees it. Look at this: [show the problem, don't just describe it]."
0:50-1:15	Why it matters	"When this happens, [the likely cost in plain words: people leave, call someone else, or can't book]."
1:15-1:45	What you would fix	"Here's what I would change: [Fix 1], [Fix 2] and [Fix 3]."
1:45-2:00	One next step	"If this is useful, reply to my email and we can have a 15-minute call. If not, no problem, and thanks for watching."

What to show live in each niche:

- Web design: the site on your phone, and Google's PageSpeed test run live, so the result is not just your opinion. The score changes a few points between runs, so describe it as Google's simulated phone test.
- Local SEO: a normal Google search for their business type and area, and what the top results have that they lack.
- Google reviews & reputation: their Maps listing next to two nearby businesses, then how simple a review request can be.
- Social media & ads: their website with no social links, their Instagram if they have one, and one post you would make.
- AI chatbots & booking: trying to book on their website at night, then what an assistant could answer.

> Tip: Close other tabs and turn off notifications before you record, and never show other clients' data. Upload the video as unlisted (only people with the link can watch it) and send the link. Describe what you would do; don't promise results.

Discovery call agenda

A discovery call is a short call to understand their business before you suggest anything. Plan 20 minutes. Before it, reread their row in the sheet, open their website and Google listing, and have your price range ready.

Minutes	Part	What to say or ask
0-2	Open	"Thanks for making time. My plan: I'll ask a few questions, then share what I'd suggest. Is 20 minutes still OK?"

Minutes	Part	What to say or ask
2-7	Their business	"Who are your best customers?" "Where do most new customers come from today?"
7-12	The problem	Show the evidence again. "How does this affect you day to day?" Let them describe the cost in their own words.
12-15	What they tried	"Have you worked on this before? What happened?"
15-18	Budget, timing, decision	"Do you have a budget in mind?" "When would you like this done?" "Does anyone else decide with you?"
18-20	Next step	"I'll send a one-page proposal by [Day]. Can we talk on [Day] to go through it?"

Add one question for your niche:

Niche	Extra question
Web design	"When people visit the website, what do you want them to do: call, book or visit?"
Local SEO	"Which searches do you most want to show up for?"
Google reviews & reputation	"How do you ask customers for feedback today?"
Social media & ads	"Who posts for you now, and how often?"
AI chatbots & booking	"What are the five questions your team answers most often?"

Listen more than you talk. Write short notes in the Notes column straight after the call.

Post-call follow-up

Send this on the day of the call. It shows you listened and lets them correct you before you write the proposal.

Subject: Notes from our call

Hi [Their name],

Thanks for your time today. Here's what I heard, so we're on the same page:

- Your goal: [their goal, in their words]
- The main problem: [the evidence, plus what they said it costs them]
- What matters most to you: [timing, budget or another priority]

As promised, I'll send a one-page proposal by [Day]. If I got anything wrong, just reply and tell me.

Proposal email

Send it within 48 hours of the call. Keep the email short; the details go in the one-page proposal.

Subject: Proposal for [Short name]

Hi [Their name],

As promised, here's my proposal for [Short name]: [Link or attached PDF]

In short:
- Your goal: [their goal]
- What I'll do: [the main work, in one line]
- Timeline: start [Date], finished by [Date]
- Price: [Option 1 and price], [Option 2 and price] or [Option 3 and price]

To start, I'll need [logo, photos, logins or other items]. To go ahead, just reply "yes" with the option you prefer, and I'll send [the agreement / the deposit invoice].

Is there anything you'd like me to change before you decide?

[Signature]

One follow-up after the proposal

No answer after 2-3 days? Send one short note, then wait.

Hi [Their name],

Did you get a chance to look at the proposal? I'm happy to answer questions or adjust the scope to fit your budget. If now isn't the right time, just tell me and I'll close the file.

Then set Status to Won for a yes, or Lost for a no or two weeks of silence.

Phrases to avoid

Avoid	Why	Write instead
"I hope this finds you well"	Filler that every cold email uses	Start with the fact
"I came across your business"	Vague: it could be sent to anyone	Say exactly where you looked: "on Google Maps"
"Loved your work!" or "Big fan"	Fake familiarity: they know you are a stranger	Say honestly how you found them
"Most businesses lose half their customers..."	An invented statistic	Only numbers from the sheet or a test you ran
"Only two spots left this month"	Pressure	No deadlines; let them decide
"Just following up" or "Bumping this"	Adds nothing	Add one new, useful angle
"Guaranteed first page" or "Double your bookings"	A promise you can't keep	Describe what you will do, not results

These templates help you write honest, specific messages. They can't guarantee replies or clients. Results depend on your niche, area, offer and care.
